

“Worldviews create worlds.”

The Collective and the Law of Attraction in 2012

What does it mean to really own the power of manifestation? If the Law of Attraction is true and real, what does that mean? There is no separation between the way you feel when you look at the world around you and what you perceive to be true about this world.

To really own that and live with what it means is not at all easy, because it makes each one of us personally responsible for the truth of the world condition.

A reasonable reaction to that statement is to say something like, “but I love this place and I have never had anything to do with the toxic chem-trails crisscrossing the sky.” Or, “I have spent my life working to prevent the erosion of civil rights and there is no way I have had anything to do with the current police state.” You get the idea – it is perfectly normal and reasonable to say that there are conditions in the world that are the opposite of what you want and that there’s no way you could have possibly manifested those conditions and therefore they are the work of someone else.

And what I want you to understand is that more and more, we are learning that time is an energy, that all moments are eternally present. Within that statement, a person has to realize that means that all human energies are currently present now. This is very much a clear way to understand karma.

Imagine how much negative energy the human race has emanated into the universe (but please only briefly, and don’t put any energy into it!). Considering all the horrifying things we have done to one another, and how much terror, pain, anguish, etc. we have juiced out over the years, it is no wonder that at this moment the ice caps are melting. So what are you going to do about it?

I both am and am not asking you to take responsibility for the actions of the Hitlers of our species. You didn’t do that, but it was done, and you do have to accept where we are as a species now. Which is where we have always been – at the center of the Universe, creating it with our perception at all times.

For a variety of reasons, we have forgotten that, at the species level, we create what we get. Many very separative ideologies have been promulgated. Perhaps (in my opinion) none so insidious as the notion of “enlightened self-interest” that is at the heart of our way of life. For in that way of thinking we choose to separate ourselves from the collective. But just as each of us is a frequency drawing a frequency, so we as a species are a frequency. At this time it is asked that we remember this. It is time to remember our power as members of a collective. All separation does is create toxicity.

In the way in which we perceive history, there have been a number of significant shifts in our collective understanding of the universe and our place in it. For the last 500 years or so, we have been working with an assumption that reason, and not faith, is driving our destiny. The dominant paradigm has been that what we “know” is more powerful than what we “believe.”

And what we know is data, and the data has been increasingly bad. Such that at this moment, many of the most intelligent and loving people on the planet are fairly certain that we are doomed.

But as you know that the guides are loving and good, so you know that there is a reason that, at this crux moment, Abraham starts speaking to us through Esther Hicks. As you know the guides are good and loving, so you know there is a reason why Bruce Lipton is teaching us about where evolution comes from and where it is leading us. Darkness and light walk hand in hand, and both are gifts to us. To go on, we must be here.

Shall we now own the power of the Law of Attraction? No matter what our species has manifested, we must accept and live into our power to create Heaven on Earth. How would Christ perceive this moment? How would Buddha perceive this moment. From both, there is an emanation of utter inclusivity, a glowing love energy which sees each person on the planet as a perfect expression of what is needed now.

Read this again: “Worldviews create worlds.” Can you take responsibility for this? It is a giant leap of faith. And yet it is also precisely what we are being asked at this time and I challenge you now to check in with your truth-center and deny what I’m saying. Worldviews create worlds. It is up to you to perceive the world you want to live in, in order to attract it. It is up to you to perceive this moment as necessary, as an expression of all past and future karma, and to realize that we each have the power to break out of the loops.

This is what Free Will really is – the power to choose how you perceive the world, the power to step above the fray. It is the power to choose to see the world through the eyes of Jesus, through the eyes of Love.

Many of us feel as though we once knew this very thing and yet chose to learn it again. There is something about the goodness of the Earth we live on that we have taken for granted. Somehow, we started to see the Earth as a piece of data, rather than as a living manifestation of the Creator’s Love.

We are here, each of us, precisely for this moment – a moment which will be looked back on as the biggest turning point in the history of our species. We are each of us lucky to be here, for the opportunity to grow has never been so vast.

The guides have given us many hints, many clues – they are offering us the chance to remember something we have forgotten.

So it is that on Christmas Eve, 2011, at 10:06 AM Pacific Time, we have a New Moon in the 3rd degree of the sign of Capricorn. And so it is that on Christmas day, 2011, the guide manifesting as the planet Jupiter goes direct, initiating a 4 week period of no retrograde planets. We are given this opportunity to start the year 2012 from here, without bringing with us all the data, all the karma.

What is it we have forgotten? The Pleiadian symbol for the 3rd Degree of Capricorn is, "A man drinks in the essence of a forgotten dream."

Once we knew how to pray together. Once we knew that our collective frequency creates Heaven.

Worldviews create worlds. This is the essence of the forgotten dream. Drink it in.

May the Moon give you hope!

Much love,

Jon

Richard Tarnas wrote "Worldviews create worlds" in his incredibly beautiful book, "Cosmos and Psyche."

Please read that, and Bruce Lipton's "Spontaneous Evolution." The data supports living forwards into a beautiful future.
